Learn from five experienced Apple Watch developers...
By Dan Wall
Great resource if you are planning to build apps for Apple Watch. There is an introduction to Apple Watch covering the anatomy of a WatchKit app and the different types of interfaces, followed up by a chapter on how to build a simple stopwatch application - nice way to get a jumpstart on building Watch apps. Then there are five more chapters, each by different authors, that take you through building different apps.

The authors are all experienced iOS developers who have built Watch apps. They take you though what they have learned from both a design and technical implementation perspective. Some of the examples are written in Objective C and others are written in Swift. The final chapter even covers writing a cross-platform Watch app using Ionic and Cordova.
