A good pick up for Cthulhu - but read for the trigger warning

By Jetpack

I picked this up in PDF version, which came in real handy later. This is a collection of Call of Cthulhu items.

A new creature/item - The Golden Goblin. An interesting take - I rather like the origin idea.

A smuggler cult, ready to be inserted into a game.

The Devil's Opera - also ready to be inserted into your game. A very neat idea.

Suggestions on playing a military character. Not necessary for me due to my heavy reading in military history, but certainly could be useful for others.

A new Great Old One - truly unnecessary to me. Bugg-Shash? Seriously? I agree with the Trail folks that we don't need new Old Ones.

A new Tome - Again, I agree with the Trail folks that the more Mythos tomes, the merrier.

The Silks of Irem - I don't care for the item, but I like the idea behind it.

Some info. on the Hobo.

The rest of the books are scenarios. I'm glad they don't call them adventures. Here is where I'm glad that I got the PDF, as I pitched one scenario involving child sexual abuse. For very personal reasons this is a nonstarter for me, so in the trash that went. If I had Kickstarted this, I would have been very peeved. In fact, I think this has sworn me off ever doing another Kickstarter for an RPG.

Other than that, you have:

Consumption - a well written adventure about cannibals.

The Lonely Point Lighthouse - I really like this one. The players have a very nice ethical dilemma.

With Blue Uncertain Stumbling - I very much like this one as well. I appreciate the villain being described as B list. Nice to know not every one is a Great Old God.

Darkness Illuminated - Another good ethical dilemma at the end.

Overall, a great pick up, but I just can't give it 5 stars for a child sexual abuse scenario. That's useless to me, not to mention painful, so had to take off a star.
