I AM, (I will become, what I will become!)

By texasiguana

In the statement of "I am", and its definition and after reading this book, confirms why, after years of religion poisoning my mind with "suffering, death, and hopefully, going to heaven" - I was always left with the one area in my life that always never seemed to get filled. Always having an "unsatisfied - empty" feeling. As if there has to be more to life than struggling, death and hoping to get a place called heaven. (That no-one can point to the place or direction of the location) Now, I know why I always felt there is more to life, because now - "I am beginning to remember!"
